1	The main thing that you need to do is to collaborate with stakeholders on solutions rather than simply consulting (and then ignoring) without any explanation. Also, the city needs to take back control of the planning and consultation process. Right now, it is controlled by private developers who pay the consultants. The concerns and needs of the public are grossly neglected as a result.	8/10/2018 4:51 PM
2	I don't know how I'd see a difference.	7/25/2018 7:14 AM
3	connecting via social media and email get the word out much better. The sessions are quite interactive	7/18/2018 10:39 PM
4	The public meetings feel more consultative, and less like an obligatory consultation.	7/17/2018 2:23 PM
5	would like more info in french	7/17/2018 10:51 AM
6	I'm really happy to see more online engagement but would like to see user friendly and centralized access for participating. Having a profile that people can log into would help avoid bots or other bad actors from manipulating the process.	7/16/2018 9:25 PM
7	By "Public involvement" do you mean folks like me at public displays/meetings? I rarely have ever attended an information or planning meeting.	7/10/2018 10:49 PM
8	Not sure what you meant by the question	7/10/2018 7:19 PM
9	I notice more town hall meetings, emails informing of changes, asking questions, giving us details of projects.	7/10/2018 12:21 PM
10	Very disappointed in Route 90 public consultation. It is baffling why the project's so-called 'Public Advisory Committee' has deliberately excluded area residents who are directly affected.	7/10/2018 9:27 AM
11	I think I've seen more interest from the public but that may just be because I've been more engaged.	7/9/2018 7:57 PM
12	I have been involved in local issues, but not sure I've seen increased & sustained involvement from others.	7/9/2018 4:54 PM
13	Overall positive change with more public notices but only joined OPE newsletter in the last year but a disturbing trend in some public engagements not sent via regular OPE bulletins on important matters. These include WPS re-accreditation, some transit matters. In both cases there was well know public concerns with WPS, Transit fare hikes and svc changes, Property Taxes, Frontage Levees, Fees etc.... It appeared these not publicized better because it well know they is widespread public concern with these and how the City managing these. This only causes more loss of trust and respect of the Mayor, City Council, the City and the public bodies involved.	7/9/2018 3:36 PM
14	Where was the consultation on opening Portage and Main. What happened to the Wilkes study. Bowman and his flucky McNeil knew nothing! What a joke. City hall still doesn't listen.	7/9/2018 11:25 AM
15	It is still the squeaky wheel that gets the grease and I don't believe we are reaching our most vulnerable citizens who need a voice. We need to do a better job of reaching out to them.	7/9/2018 9:42 AM
16	Asking for public input and opinion. Especially considering it does concern us. We want to see positive changes that will truly benefit the public.	7/8/2018 7:25 PM
17	I'm glad the city is holding open houses early in the planning stages rather than later when everything has already been decided.	7/8/2018 6:34 PM

Public Engagement Newsletter Summer 2018 Question of the Week 1

18	I feel that public engagement will get noticed if and when they reflect what administration has already planned and wants to carry out.	7/8/2018 5:13 PM
19	More engagement opportunities and in more ways. Some surveys online have flaws or don't work making accurate feedback/opinions impossible to share.	7/8/2018 3:23 PM
20	Aside from the people who are on the list to receive opportunities to comment I suspect that beyond potholes and the Jets most care little about what's happening in the city.	7/8/2018 1:25 PM
21	No one asked us anything during the Katz years, that's for sure.	7/8/2018 12:54 AM
22	I noticed the emails with the questions to engage citizens. Suggestion would be to post on facebook and twitter and have a page where people can comment on posts.	7/7/2018 3:22 PM
23	It's hard to tell how many people actually get involved. I hear about opportunities for public engagement but never hear how many people attend meetings, for example, or number of people who complete surveys compared to the total population. Those metrics would help illustrate how many people are engaging and as a way to more people to get involved.	7/7/2018 9:40 AM
24	I have noticed much more email communications explaining projects and requesting citizen input.	7/7/2018 8:55 AM
25	I have noticed more and easier options for giving my input on proposals. Various pop ups and email surveys.	7/6/2018 9:18 PM
26	I like the increased promotion of engagement opportunities. What could be improved is reporting on what input was heard and how it was used. Also, would be good to have engagement opportunity to determine city priorities, not just details about projects already underway.	7/6/2018 4:30 PM
27	Seems that more projects are conducting some form of public engagement than in previous years, and that more people are becoming involved.	7/6/2018 1:27 PM
28	Despite requests for speed bumps to slow traffic on our street due to heavier volumes and teenagers from our area collegiate the completion of such is wrapped in studies, committees and assorted impediments to any action. There is far too much red tape in this city !!!!!	7/6/2018 12:00 PM
29	nice to have surveys like with the rapid transit improvements, it was interesting and I learned some things.	7/6/2018 10:04 AM
30	I am impressed with the City's commitment to engaging with the public. I think that very same level of positive intent should be applied to paper billing. It needs to be a whole lot less intimidating and way clearer.	7/6/2018 9:51 AM
31	I'm not positive if engagement efforts have increased or if I am simply more aware of them ... but the ability to review projects and express opinions online has greatly improved access and convenience. Going forward, I think an enhancement could be better access to the results of engagement, and to what, if anything, changed as a result of engagement.	7/6/2018 9:11 AM
32	I notice that the City asks more of these questions, and asks for engagement, but I do not know that people answering calls for engagement translates into changes in public involvement that matters, if the responses do not cause the City to change its decisions according to what citizens say they want. Bus fare increases in 2018 were outrageous and there was great "public involvement" in protesting the increases, but the city raised the fare anyway. So no, I do not notice "changes with regards to public involvement in City projects". I notice the City carrying on with its projects as usual.	7/6/2018 9:11 AM
33	We were involved several times spring to autumn last year over making a bike route through Wolseley to HSC then to downtown. The last couple of times I was on the website I couldn't find the map - lots of other maps but not that one. I think it's still happening because I've seen surveyers and Cindy Gilroy mentioned in the Free Press Metro recently that it's still on. Would like some more updates. I live on Banning St. and I'm really looking forward to the changes.	7/6/2018 9:06 AM
34	The City has done a great job with increasing public engagement in the last couple years. I personally enjoy the public engagement emails that are sent out. It gives info on surveys and upcoming open houses. Due to my schedule, I can't typically attend public open houses, but I really like the opportunity to take surveys on City project. I feel my voice is heard. Great job, keep up the good work.	7/6/2018 8:33 AM
35	So many projects that went off the rails seemingly by City administration. We still don't know the whole story so interested in the findings if they are ever made public.	7/6/2018 8:01 AM
36	2 heads are always better than one. also a better understanding of the cost of things help make better decision making.	7/6/2018 7:59 AM

Public Engagement Newsletter Summer 2018 Question of the Week 1

37	Online requests for Winnipeggers to participate in surveys (like this one) and/or open houses, etc.	7/6/2018 6:18 AM
38	I like the email notifications and the convenience of online surveys.	7/6/2018 5:41 AM
39	Changes Noticed -More internet usage -More public engagements -Under advertising changes i.e setup Portage & Main with billboards on several occasions. Would suggest making more input via the web possible	7/6/2018 5:16 AM
40	I feel like I didn't know about the email newsletter and receiving news through email was a possibility until very recently. Maybe more effort needs to be put out there to let people know they can use that as a form of engagement. I think many of my colleagues are unaware of that fact and I think email is a great medium for many Winnipeggers.	7/6/2018 12:00 AM
41	The Corydon Osborne community worked for a decade to get a plan that included Confusion Corner. This plan was totally ignored in the current changes to Pembina and expropriations from Confusion Corner and the City hid the changes from the community by never stating where they were occurring in the title of the document or contacting the community groups involved with the plan so that they could notify their communities.	7/5/2018 10:02 PM
42	There is just too much engagement happening now - it's become overwhelming for people and then they stop participating. Not everything needs to go to public engagement.	7/5/2018 9:32 PM
43	I haven't really paid attention because it seems to be that government at all levels will do whatever is on their agenda without really considering what the public wants. I think surveys like this and public forums are to make the public feel involved but in reality it doesn't really matter.	7/5/2018 9:22 PM
44	Actually listen to what people want	7/5/2018 9:09 PM
45	cut the big PENSIONS at CITY HALL	7/5/2018 9:01 PM
46	Seen money going into park when there was no money for roads	7/5/2018 6:58 PM
47	The emails identifying opps for feedback amd engagement have been great, as are the options for online comments/surveys, etc. Hopefully it gives a younger perspective on things instead of just hearing from cranky nimbys with the time to go to daytime open house events :-D	7/5/2018 6:40 PM
48	I've noticed more prominent information on the website and such.	7/5/2018 6:22 PM
49	More emails and more consultations sessions with the public are held.	7/5/2018 6:15 PM
50	There is more public input but the outcome does not reflect the public input. The city had already made a decision on the outcome even before the public input.	7/5/2018 5:55 PM
51	to many project we are being told instead of being given a choice. Portage and Main are a good example. We don't need it!	7/5/2018 5:24 PM
52	We are being offered many more opportunities to provide input to projects around the City.	7/5/2018 5:21 PM
53	Parks and Rec had been more responsive and has been more involved in the beautification of our city. In addition, I am noticing that the postage stamp area of the inner city is garnering more flower planting, more road repair, more attention to our heritage buildings and possibly more attention to Pt. Douglas. If we do not address housing, and more supports in Portage Place, there will be a continuing uptake of violence on buses all over the city. I would strongly urge city planners to work with council on improving the area from the Red River on the east to Inkster on the north, to Arlington on the west to the Assiniboine River on the South and east to the Forks. This postage stamp boundary is crucial to the well- being of our entire city. The ghettoization of this area must stop with greater emphasis on improving this area.	7/5/2018 5:13 PM
54	Since 311, a taxpayer is unable to verbally communicate with a City staff regarding issues and/or problems. In my opinion the City has silenced the taxpayer.	7/5/2018 5:07 PM
55	Since I began receiving emails regarding public engagement sessions I have attended several of these. Prior to the emails I wasn't aware of them and I don't know if the sessions were well attended. I think they are a useful opportunity for information gathering and sharing of opinions.	7/5/2018 4:59 PM
56	Public input should always be measured to determine support or opposition to proposed projects. These need to be brought forward as the election cycle is sometimes to far apart.	7/5/2018 4:53 PM
57	It seems all talk about public input.	7/5/2018 4:50 PM

Public Engagement Newsletter Summer 2018 Question of the Week 1

58	I see the opportunity for public engagement but am not aware of the statistics for actual public input or have I noticed publication of actual results of public input. Perhaps that information is available, but I have missed it somehow. Therefore, if that is an representation of the average public citizen, how can the results be made more readily apparent?	7/5/2018 4:42 PM
59	I think most people feel they can't fight city hall so they don't even try to engage with the city. If the city really wants people to engage with them then they need to make sure all committees and boards are open to the public and that all meetings are well-publicized. How about having each councillor send a monthly email to citizens about what is going to be happening at City Hall in that month?	7/5/2018 4:31 PM
60	People are oblivious to what this city is doing to them. No one knows for instance that PP&D are "planning" to take people's houses after 1.5 years instead of 3 years. No one knows that city council is contravening the charter by passing a four year budget. No one knows that developers get a cart blanche with the WPS when they build in mature neighbourhoods. No one knows that an appeal to the city regarding a city dept decision has gone up 250% because this is the first time in Winnipeg's history that it costs $250.00. No one knows that in June of 2016 all permits and fees in Winnipeg were doubled. That's 100% increase. No one knows that any citizen can attend any city hall meeting, including EPC. I know because I ask people everywhere and in every age group whenever I can. They didn't know. But they know now.	7/5/2018 4:30 PM
61	Yes it is a change you are now asking if we see any difference	7/5/2018 4:27 PM
62	The changes I have noticed is the road construction and construction workers chat on the scenes in summers. The positive is residents are so happy driving on the nice roads; on the other hand, the construction is always blocking and taking too long to be done, It wastes time, money and very inconvenience. In my option, construction workers need to have clear direction on how to do their jobs not chatting in the scenes.	7/5/2018 4:20 PM
63	More advance notices of public engagement opportunities, and more locations for participating people to get to. Emails also more clear and informative. All good.	7/5/2018 4:19 PM
64	There has been an increase in the number of projects where public response is being encouraged and it has become easier to respond online when I can't attend public open houses. The online surveys have also improved greatly in their format and the amount of information provided.	7/5/2018 4:08 PM
65	The city seems not to want to hear from anyone who cannot hop on a bus or a bike, who is not fully able and fit. The city is doing nothing to end homelessness, and it could, if it wanted to. Alberta cities have.	7/5/2018 3:57 PM
66	Your e-newsletters do a good job of informing me when there are opportunities to participate. You seem to have more of a standard process in place for all projects, rather than leaving it up to the discretion of the project teams.	7/5/2018 3:54 PM
67	It's difficult from my end to notice the change in engagement. I have been engaging more often, but I'm not necessarily typical of a Winnipeg citizen.	7/5/2018 3:36 PM
68	I have been invited to participate in many public engagement surveys and sent several email alerts on projects going on in the community. However, I doubt that lay persons are particularly involved in either the surveys or news alerts.	7/5/2018 3:31 PM
69	There are many more projects in the city . I have yet to be asked about a ublic process for the Portage and main project and the proposed traffic issues arising from it. Bike paths are great but I have yet to see a bicycle on the street in the downtown area where there are diamond lanes for them.	7/5/2018 3:31 PM
70	There appear to be many more specific opportunities that relate to my interests, and more comprehensive methods for gathering my input.	7/5/2018 3:25 PM
71	The majority of the populations has very strong feelings about NOT spending the money to open Portage and Main to pedestrians and the mayor is not listening.	7/5/2018 3:24 PM
72	I am happy with the emails sent out wanting involvement but have not really seen it our input helps or not. Specifically raising the speed limit on Pembina south of the St. Norbert bridge from 60 to 70	7/5/2018 3:21 PM
73	you asked our opinion but it doesn't seem to carry any weight in your decisions.	7/5/2018 3:20 PM
74	Involvement opportunities seem more accessible via online forums and/or are advertised well. The intent to engage is honest and noticeable.	7/5/2018 3:18 PM

Public Engagement Newsletter Summer 2018 Question of the Week 1

75	The review process for content going to open houses needs to be shortened significantly from six weeks; it is a problem when the PE timeline is seriously impacting the overall project timeline on major projects.	7/5/2018 3:17 PM
76	How about getting our input into the proposed opening of Portage and main, the mayor's pet project in where he is blocking any input the citizens have	7/5/2018 3:17 PM
