

Residential Variance (DAV “B”) Single Family Dwelling or Two-Family Dwelling Application Form

Use this application if your residential project does not meet all zoning rules. You can ask for a variance to allow changes like building closer to a property line or adding height. A variance gives permission to do something that zoning usually does not allow.

What is a variance?

A variance is a request to modify the dimensional standards or requirements of the Zoning By-Law that apply to a specific property. This may include yards/ building setbacks, height requirements, and/or lot coverage. When these requirements cannot be met due to unique circumstances related to a property, a variance is an option to ensure that a property owner is not deprived of normal rights to use their property. A variance allows an exemption to one or more of the zoning requirements under certain circumstances, but it does not change the zoning designation of the property.

How long does the variance process take?

The length of time to process depends on the complexity of the variance application and the completeness of the required documentation and information (refer to the checklist under “Application Submission Requirements”). This includes, but is not limited to, a detailed letter of intent describing why the Zoning By-law requirements for the proposal cannot be met and plans that are legible and drawn to scale. The process takes approximately six to eight weeks from the date of the application submission to complete. Complicated applications may take longer.

What happens during the variance process?

Once the application is submitted to a Zoning Development Officer and the applicable fees have been paid, the file is circulated to the Development Planning Officer. The Development Planning Officer will review the application and prepare a report to support the variance with conditions, request for changes in order to approve the variance, or reject the variance altogether.

The criteria to approve a variance application are based on Subsection 247(3) of The City of Winnipeg Charter which includes the following:

- (a) Is consistent with Plan Winnipeg and any applicable secondary plan
- (b) Does not create a substantial adverse effect on the amenities, use, safety and convenience of the adjoining property and adjacent area, including an area separated from the property by a street or waterway
- (c) Is the minimum modification of a zoning by-law required to relieve the injurious effect of the zoning by-law on the applicant's property
- (d) Is compatible with the area in which the property to be affected is situated

In the letter of intent, please explain how each criterion is met. This is an opportunity to address all issues and reduce the possibility of an important factor being overlooked.

If the Development Planning Officer approves the variance, the variance clerk will create the public notices and will contact the applicant to pick up the notices from Zoning and Permits office. The applicant must post the notices on the subject property for a period of 14 days in a visible location facing the street(s) and/or lane(s). The applicant is responsible for maintaining the notices during the required 14-day posting period (as per Subsection 118 of The City of Winnipeg Charter). The public notices inform the neighbourhood of the purpose of the variance and any conditions that are deemed necessary for approval. Should the notices be removed or damaged during the posting period, the applicant must contact the Zoning and Permits office for replacement notices.

What happens if the Development Planning Officer supports the variance, but the application is appealed by neighbours?

- Any neighbouring property owner(s) who oppose the variance granted by the order may appeal the decision by submitting a written notice to the City Clerk's Department prior to the end of the 14-day posting period as specified on the public notice
- The applicant shall be notified by registered mail of any appeals
- If there are appeals, the property is posted for a second 14-day period informing the neighbourhood of the appeal hearing date. The matter is heard before the Appeal Committee at City Hall, 510 Main Street.
- The Appeal Committee may dismiss the appeal (allow the original variance order to be confirmed), grant the appeal (dismiss the original order), or allow the appeal in part placing conditions on an Appeal Order
- If the original order is dismissed (the variance is rejected), the applicant cannot re-apply for the same variance within one year from the date of the Appeal Order and a building or development permit cannot be issued for the proposed work

What happens if the Development Planning Officer rejects the variance, but the application is appealed by the applicant?

Please note: The Development Planning Officer will contact the applicant prior to formally rejecting a variance application. The applicant may appeal a rejected order as per the procedure below:

- If the Director of Planning Property and Development (or designate) rejects the variance application, the applicant shall be notified of the decision by registered mail
- The applicant may appeal the rejected order by submitting a written notice to the City Clerk's Department prior to the conclusion of the appeal period as specified on the variance order
- The subject property is posted for a 14-day period informing the neighbourhood of the appeal and hearing date. The matter is heard before the Appeal Committee at City Hall, 510 Main Street.
- The Appeal Committee may dismiss the appeal (allow the rejected order to be confirmed) or grant the appeal (dismiss the rejected order)
- If the appeal is dismissed (the variance is rejected), the applicant cannot re-apply for the same variance within one year from the date of the Appeal Order and a building or development permit cannot be issued for the proposed work
